Conflict

Conflict is the essential problem or challenge in a story. It is not merely limited to open arguments or fights with monsters. It is any form challenge or struggle that the main character faces. Within a short story, there may be only one central problem, or there may be one dominant problem with many minor ones. In a novel, there will almost certainly be multiple conflicts.

Conflict is essential to plot. Without conflict there is no plot. If everything just moved along smoothly and there were no problems or challenges stories would be pretty boring!

There are two main types of conflict:

- 1) External - A struggle with a force outside one's self.
 - 2) Internal - A struggle within one's self; a person must make some decision, overcome pain, quiet their temper, resist an urge, etc.

Within those two big groups are four smaller kinds of conflict.

- 1) Character vs. Man- The leading character struggles with his physical strength against other men, forces of nature, or animals.
 - 2) Character vs. Nature- The leading character struggles against fate, or the circumstances of life facing him/her.
 - 3) Character vs. Society- The leading character struggles against ideas, practices, or customs of other people.
 - 4) Character vs. Self- The leading character struggles with himself/herself; with his/her own soul, ideas of right or wrong, physical limitations, choices, etc.

Please Highlight the Internal Conflicts in Yellow and the External in Pink!

One of the things I like best about school is my art class. We have a great teacher named Mrs. Hilbert. She is a wonderful artist. I love to watch her draw and paint. She taught us how to mix paint to make just the right colors for our paintings. She plays good music while we draw and paint. We draw and paint almost everyday in class. Some days we look at pictures of other artists. It is interesting to do this. It helps me to think of things that I want to paint or draw. We have an art exhibit in May this year. Our work will be in one of the banks in our town. We are inviting people from Our parents are invited to go with us. I have on now. I hope one of them will be chosen to be goal to work toward.

But is there really an apple in a person's eye? This figure of speech is common in our everyday language, and we may not even realize it! A few great examples of ~~aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa~~ IM is a phrase that seems self-contradictory, however, it may actually contain some truth. Many writers use the words "as" or "as" to compare the two items. Read the poem. Then answer the questions by circling the answer. Tick the symbols in blue. Then, under each sentence you write, indicate what kind of language is being used. Example: You are not yet out of danger. Then underline the metaphors in red. When you hear a tongue twister, you are hearing sliteration. Underline the piece that needs to be removed and then rewrite the sentence without the language, but make sure that the sentence has the same meaning. One can find a great example of simile. Pun games are a type of figurative language that uses a homonym or a variation of the word to create a different meaning. Explain. Idioms are a type of figurative language, adding color and interest to the writing. Identify the type of figurative language in each sentence. Some common examples of idiomatic expressions are, "High as a Kite" Irony is a literary device that has everything to do with opposites: opposite meanings, opposite results and opposite expectations. Rewrite the sentence without this form of language, but with the same meaning. Ex: white as snow I don't have of what our plans are for today. Read every sentence. Write on the line.
